THE COMING DAYS OF THE CASINO.

HOW THE CHANGED OLD ORDER IS TO YIELD PLACE TO THE NEW.

Rudolph Aronson announces that he has now arranged the details for the coming season at the Casino and is able to name a definite date for the opening of that house. The financial difficulties that temporarily interfered with the fulfillment of the plans Mr. Aronson had made are now, he says, overcome.

To explain the rumors recently in circulation concerning the Casino, it is said that previous to Mr. Aronson's departure for Europe in October a contract was entered into with S. Webster Parker, in consideration of 40 per cent of the capital stock of the Casino Company. Mr. Parker agreed to back the company in its undertaking of rejuvenating the Casino. After Mr. Aronson's return from Europe, and after all interested had approved the contracts made by him while abroad, a misunderstanding arose with Mr. Parker, which ended in his being, as a financier or influential factor, dropped from the enterprise.

A syndicate was then formed representing the Aronson interests, and the money necessary for the opening of the theatre and the Casino Club was subscribed. Work has been begun upon the building and will be pushed forward rapidly. The treasury of the company has been accepted by Thomas J. Hamilton.

Mr. Aronson says that he will open the theatre with a vaudeville entertainment, made up of European attractions, all of them new to this country. The opening night will be Monday, February 18. The artists will sail from Havre and Southampton on February 2. In addition to the vaudeville entertainment, Mr. Aronson's one-act opera, "Trial by Jury," staged by Richard Barker, will be presented, and there will also be a short ballet. A peculiarity of the first performances will be the construction of the musical programme, which will consist of new compositions, none of them ever before heard in America. Among these will be Mr. Aronson's latest waltz, "The Strauss Jubilee," written for the jubilee in Vienna and dedicated to Johann Strauss. This number will be conducted by Mr. Aronson personally.

The improvements in the Casino Building will be numerous, and all conducive to the increased comfort of the audience. Francis H. Kimball, the architect of the Casino, has taken control of this part of the work. There are to be three aisles in the auditorium, instead of two, as formerly. The seats are to be placed further apart, so that those occupying places in the middle of a row may pass out without inconvenience to their neighbors. Shelves are to be attached to the backs of chairs to hold glasses. The catering department will be under the management of Mr. Dorval, of the St. James Hotel. The alterations will necessitate doing away with nearly 100 seats in the auditorium, but the increased comfort afforded, it is expected, will compensate for the reduced seating capacity. Sixteen boxes are to be added on the balcony floor, making a total of thirty-six boxes in the house. The buffet door is to be reserved for the use of the Casino Club exclusively, the front portion to be provided with seats from which a view of the stage may be had and the
